ORPHAN CHILDREN AFFORD THE SONGS

Inmates of the Great Institution Join with Glee in the Simple but Beautiful Ceremonies of the Day.

The grounds, buildings and cottages of the Christian home were transformed yes-Mrs. M. L. Bolin and Mrs. Shreves have terday into a veritable fairy bower. Pyramids of blooming plants, pillows and banks of cut flowers, groves of palms, many wreaths of smilax and ferns and hundreds of white clad, bright-faced, happy little children flitting like humming birds from flower to flower, carried out the illusion. It was a Complaint has been made that vandals gala day at the orphanage, and besides the have been destroying plants and bushes of children, there were hundreds of friends of wided for by the iceal horists, J. F. Wicex and J. R. McPherson, and no event in the city has ever called from them such a generous donation. The cut flowers alone were valued at over $500. Every room in the residence of the manager was banked with flowers. The dining room was a bower of beauty. The table was eproad with snowy lines and covered with pansies and eprays of fern. with pillows of red and white roses at each end. A deep border of smilax was wreathed around the eldes. A cut glass candelabrum filled with pink candles was almost hidden with white and tea rosebude. Ropes of smiiax reached from the corners to the awinging lamp above, and this was covered with flow greens and wrought into a marriage The fireplace and windows were banked with palms, gigantic ferns and callas, with red and white roses peeping through. The bay window and the arched doorway were both almost concealed with flowers, ferns palms and smilax.

The decorations in the other rooms were not so elaborate, but were equally beautiful and arranged with artistic originality. It was originally designed to hold the open-ing services, in which the children were to take part, and the remarriage of the bride and groom in the new chapel that has just been completed, but the crowd was far too large to permit of it. Hundrede of camp chairs were procured and placed on the lawn in front of a large amphitheater prepared for the accommodation of the children of the

BEAUTIFUL PROCESSIONAL. Just before 3 o'clock a mandolin club com-posed of Beulah Hoagiand, Lillie and Mamie Noreen, Earl Beardsley, Will Pardy, Will McPherson, Albert Cline, Walter Woodward, Stella Gilbort and A. Atkins, members of the High school and Council Bluffs mandolin clubs, took their seats on the porch of the new chapel just opposite the raised seats or the lawn. Visitors quickly filled all the camp chairs, eager to see the pretty ceremonics anticipated. The playing of the mandelins was the signal for the children to march from the large central building, where they had formed into line, through the aisle between the camp chairs and up the raised seats. The procession was led by all the members of the town without having his wound dressed. He formed into line, through the aisle between the camp chairs and up the raised seats. The procession was led by all the members of the "Shut-in Band," or such of the little cripples as could manage to walk. When they reached the foot of the amphitheater seats they halted, and twenty of the older girls, dressed in white, formed a double line along the aisle. Through this the remainder of humanity required that something had to be the camp chairs and up the raised seats. The others were seated in the same way, and when the four long rows were filled the mass of juvenile humanity presented a brautiful and symmetrical figure After the raised ceats were filled, Mr. and Mrs. Lemen, accompanied by their children, marched through the aisle of young girls and took chairs in front of what might be and took chairs in front of what might be termed the altar, hastily erected on the blue grass sod. With a pretty evolution the living walls of girls countermarched to their places on the left. At the altar, Mr. and Mrs. Lemen were met by Rev. J. L. N. Young of Chicago, Rev. Dr. Buckley of Alton, Ill., and Rev. J. H. Senseny of the Broadway Methodist church. Rev. Young offered a heautiful prayer in which he asked for the besutiful prayer, in which he asked for the blessing of the Savier upon the home and its little ones. He asked a special blessing upon he manager and his wife, and prayed that heir hearts might be enlarged and their neans and opportunities increased until they means and opportunities increased until they could gather all of the homeless ones who needed homes. At the conclusion of the prayer Dr. Buckley reunited in marriage of the manager and his wife. In his address to them he paid a teuching tribute to their work and unselfish devotion to the cause of charity. As he turned and looked from then o the little army of clean, bright and happy ittle child:en he became so affected that he could not conceal his emotion. His tears vere even more eloquent than his words, an when he recovered his voice and describe the great work that was being accomplished he grew eloquent indeed, and deeply touched his sympathetic audience. SONGS OF THE LITTLE ONES. The remainder of the services consisted of singing by the children on the raised seat: A little colored boy, Charles Smith, sang a solo, "Bow Down Before Jehovah." with chorus by the smaller children. Then cama plaintive song by all of the children, "He Long, O, Lord, How Long?" followed by Long, O, Lord, How Long? followed by a solo by Miss Emily Anderson, the nightingale of the Home, "Let Us Make the Welkin Ring." A solo by little Juanita Holmes, an Indian girl, was given with the happy abandon of childheod. A song by all the children, big and little, "On This Happy Day We Banish Serrow," came next, and at its conclusion one of the pleasantest little incidents of the afternoon occurred. Two incidents of the afternoon occurred. Tw little girls, Ida Hudson and Ivy Hill, climbs down from the high seats and picking up a basket that had been left at the battom basket that had been left at the bottom, took from it a little silver plaied tea set of three small plees, and in a pretty little speech that was scarcely audible presented it to Mr. and Mrs. Lemen. For a year they had been say ug up their pennies and striving with all their might to raise enoughmoney to buy the simple present. The presentation completely broke up their benefactors. A glad Gaster anthem by the children, "If a Man Dle Shall He R.ss Again?" concluded the services.

SCENE AT THE HOME.

The evene at the Home during the even-ing was even more fairy-lke and beautiful than during the afternoon. The grounds were illuminated by hundreds of Chinese lanterns and the gally colored lights gave a fantastic charm to the surroundings. The grounds and buildings were througed with people up to 10 o'clock. The evening was devoted to simply an informal reception, and long before the last of the visitors were ready to leave the arms of Rev. Mr. Lemen and wife were aching from fatigue.

The presents were many and beautiful. Several hundred came in contented looking envelopes that were not opened and the'r contents will no doubt swell the general fund to great proportions. There were many and the lodges of the state are being urged to take action in the matter at the coming segsion of the grand lodge.

Mr. Jones on the Weather. Mr. Jones of Iowa was in town last week, says the New York Sun. He had a good deal to say about the weather—in which he

"Well," he remarked, as he mopped his forehead, "I'd like to know what sort of weather they're having up in the northern part of the state. I used to go there a good deal along about this time of year and there were always great heaps of snow out in the yard of the little old hetel. You know these left-over snowdrifts! All muddy and dirty and honeycombed, but still hanging on!
"I noticed these drifts, and I said that thought the season must be more backward than it is out in Iowa, where we really be-gin to have spring early in April. There was one old fellow sitting there with his feet upon the stove and his hands in his pockets. "'Wall,' he said with a Yankee drawl, you see we're sitcoated most peculiar. We git such a powerful lot o' snow durin' the winter that it can't git warm till that there now melts, an' the snow can't melt till i loes git warm, so there we be!"
